Ag and NRM sectors to be better serviced in Tasmania as AK Consultants join RMCG

Tasmanian agricultural and natural resource management business AK Consultants will join environmental and agricultural firm, RMCG to boost presence and expertise in South Eastern Australia.

The purchase is on track and progressing well for the planned 1 July 2020 transition. While the AK Consultants name and logo will be maintained in the short-term, the level of service and expertise for the agriculture and environment sectors in Tasmania will benefit immediately.

Together, we will have greater ability to solve problems, undertake research and provide advice with a larger team across more locations.

“We’re really looking forward to integrating into a company that share our passion, values and professionalism” said Astrid Ketelaar, Managing Director of AK Consultants.

RMCG is an environmental and agricultural consultancy and the purchase of AK Consultants is part of RMCG’s strategic growth and continued pursuit to provide the best services to clients.

Dr Anne-Maree Boland, Managing Principal of RMCG said “This sends a very clear and positive message to our valued clients during these uncertain times, that we’re committed to leading productive change in our communities.”

The current AKC staff will all be part of the new business and continue to work with clients, suppliers and collaborators on existing and new projects. The purchase has been undertaken to ensure no disruption to the services provided by AK Consultants.
